Not that I am aware of, but that sucks. I had one in storage for years and would love to find a way to set it up. It came with a couple of 220s, a self-contained amp, and a 15" steel speaker. The best part is that it was put together when the CD player was made. Those days are long gone. But in the future, maybe we can make a FIZZ project box for those who might want to build their own.
